

Chart Trends

Head & Shoulders

The inverted Head & Shoulders is typically seen in downtrends, Reversal pattern, A big increase in volumes should be seen.

Triangles

Symmetrical triangles are characterized as areas of indecision, Reliable when found in an uptrend, Top of triangles appears flat, Bottom appears upward slant, Buyers break through the old highs.

Pennants

Continuation patterns - uptrend, typically seen right after a big move, Can look like a symmetrical triangle but are typically smaller in size (volatility) and duration, Typically stop against the trend.

Flags

Continuation patterns - uptrend, Characterized by lower tops and lower bottoms, Typically stop against the trend, Typically seen right after a big move, Can look like a symmetrical triangle but are typically smaller in size (volatility) and duration, Typically stop against the trend.

Falling Wedges

Usually found in an upward trend, Lower tops and lower bottoms, Breakout in the upward trend.

Falling Wedges

Usually found in an upward trend but when seen in a downward trend expect a reversal, Lower tops and lower bottoms, Breakout in the upward trend.

Rectangles

Generally be traded as continuation upward pattern, Indecision areas resolved in the direction of the trend, Buyers and sellers evenly matched until an upward breakout

Head & Shoulders

Reversal pattern, Most often seen in up trends, Most reliable when found in an uptrend, The trend line should be drawn from the beginning neckline to the continuing neckline, Volume should increase on the breakout.

Triangles

Symmetrical triangles are characterized as areas of indecision, Reliable when found in a downtrend, Top of triangles downward slant, Bottom appears flat, Sells break through the old lows.

Pennants

Continuation patterns - downward, typically seen right after a big move, Can look like a symmetrical triangle but are typically smaller in size (volatility) and duration, Typically stop against the trend.

Flags

Continuation patterns - downward, Characterized by higher tops and higher bottoms, Typically stop against the trend, Typically seen right after a big move, Can look like a symmetrical triangle but are typically smaller in size (volatility) and duration, Typically stop against the trend.

Rising Wedges

Usually found in an upward trend and expect a reversal, Higher tops and higher bottoms, Breakout in the downward trend.

Rising Wedges

Usually found in an upward trend, Higher tops and higher bottoms, Breakout in the downward trend.

Rectangles

Generally be traded as continuation downward pattern, Indecision areas resolved in the direction of the trend, Buyers and sellers evenly matched until a downward breakout